

RUNAWAY AND HOMELESS YOUTH AND TRAFFICKING PREVENTION ACT (RHYTPA) OF 2022 (S.4916/H.R.8498) SECTION-BY-SECTION

FINDINGS SECTION

- Youth who experience homelessness disproportionately experience trauma, serious health, behavioral, social, and emotional problems, and substance use disorders because they lack sufficient resources.
- Young people experiencing homelessness, because of their age and situation, are in urgent need of temporary shelter and services – including services that are socially, age, gender, developmentally, culturally, and linguistically appropriate, and that acknowledge the environment of youth seeking these services.
- Research has documented that youth experiences of homelessness are fluid where many youth experience two to three different types of homelessness, including couch surfing, emergency shelters, and staying on the streets.
- Research has documented that persons who are members of historically marginalized and underserved communities of color, LGBTQ youth, who do not complete high school or achieve an equivalency, child welfare-involved youth, law enforcement, and criminal justice-involved youth, and pregnant and parenting youth are most likely to experience homelessness in America unaccompanied by a parent or adult.
- To successfully transition to adulthood, runaway youth and homeless youth, and other street youth, need a safe and stable place to live and a connection to caring adults.
- Positive youth development approaches ensure a young person’s sense of self-worth, empowerment, voice, choice, and self-advocacy.
- Runaway and homeless youth are at high risk of substance use disorders and becoming victims of sexual abuse, sexual exploitation, trafficking in persons, and sex trafficking.
- Research has shown that the prevalence of homelessness among youth and young adults is similar in rural and urban communities. Runaway and homeless youth programs, such as those funded under RHYTPA, are critical services that every community should provide, regardless of size.
- Runaway and Homeless Youth programs are expert adolescent service providers and integral community partners for child welfare and juvenile justice systems as many youths exit these systems to homelessness.

BASIC CENTER PROGRAM

Basic Center Program (BCP) provides temporary housing with crisis intervention services to minors (runaway youth, street youth, homeless youth, and youth at-risk of separation from their family), including counseling, family reunification, and aftercare.

- Services shall be provided to runaway youth, street youth, homeless youth, and youth at-risk of separation from their family, or at risk of becoming homeless.
- Increases allowable length of stay from 21 to 30 days, or the maximum allowed by state law, whichever is higher.

- Services must be trauma-informed, gender-responsive, and inclusive of the youth’s family, including individuals identified by the youth as family.
- Programs must include a statistical summary in the annual report describing the number, characteristics, and demographics of the youth who participated in the project, including the prevalence of human trafficking.
- Services shall include age, gender, developmentally, culturally, and linguistically appropriate, as well as suicide prevention services.
- Services may include street-based services, trauma-informed services, prevention services, substance use disorder services, gender responsive services, including youth who are victims of trafficking.
- Plan provisions shall use assistance to establish, strengthen, or fund a runaway and homeless youth center, site, or a locally controlled project providing temporary shelter with a maximum of not more than 20 youth. An exception is included where the applicant assures that the State where the center, site, or locally controlled project is located has a state or local law regulation that allows a higher maximum to comply with licensure requirements for child and youth serving facilities.
- State allocation of Basic Center Program funds to states will be based on their relative population of individuals between the ages of 13 and 17.
- An adequate plan for establishing and coordinating with outreach programs (which may include the use of online resources to reach and engage youth) that are designed to attract persons who are members of historically marginalized and underserved communities of color, persons with limited English proficiency, and runaway or homeless youth who are victims of trafficking.
- Programs must inform youth of their status as an independent student under section 480 of the Higher Education Act of 1965, provide verification of such status to complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), and assist youth complete the FAFSA.
- Grantees can serve a minimum of 4 youth and maximum of 20 youth per project, unless regulation allows a higher maximum.
- Grantees can have mixed project facilities with segregated access and programming and allow more than 20 beds in a building.

TRANSITIONAL LIVING PROGRAM

Transitional Living Program (TLP) provides longer-term housing with supportive services for homeless youth aged 16 to 25 years old, such as education support, job preparation, and health care needs—including Maternity Group Homes (MGH) to serve pregnant and parenting youth experiencing homelessness.

- Increases the eligible age for services to 25, at the option of each provider, for homeless and runaway youth.
- Shelter and such services provided to individual homeless youth throughout a continued period shall not exceed 540 days, or in exceptional circumstances 635 days. Youth in a program who have not reached the age of 23 on the last day of the 635-day period may, in exceptional circumstances and if otherwise qualified for the program, remain in the program until the youth’s 23rd birthday.
- Provide counseling to homeless and runaway youth and encourage, as appropriate, the involvement of family as identified by the youth as family.
- Provide aftercare services, if possible, to homeless and runaway youth who received shelter and relocated to another state.

- An adequate plan will be developed to ensure proper referral of homeless and runaway youth to age, gender, developmentally, culturally, and linguistically appropriate, to the extent practicable, services, including substance use disorder treatment and programs for victims of sexual abuse, trafficking, and gender-based violence.
- Outreach programs must be established and designed to attract individuals eligible to participate in this project, which may include online and social media engagements, as appropriate.
- Programs must include a statistical summary in the annual report describing the number, characteristics, and demographics of the youth who participated in the project, including the prevalence of sexual abuse, and trafficking of such youth.
- Transitional living plans are written in partnership with youth and ensure proper referrals inclusive of age, gender, culturally, and linguistically appropriate services, including mental health services, health care, and substance use disorder treatment programs.
- Coordinate services with McKinney-Vento school district liaisons to assure runaway and homeless youth are provided with information about educational services.
- Programs must inform youth of their status as an independent student under section 480 of the Higher Education Act of 1965, provide verification of such status for purposes of completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), and assist youth with completing the FAFSA.
- Grantees can serve a minimum of 4 youth and a maximum of 20 youth per project unless regulation allows a higher maximum.
- Grantees can have mixed project facilities with segregated access and programming and allow more than 20 beds in a building.
