    - i. A certified "No Record Statement" from your state of birth plus two supporting documents (referenced below). If you were born in Missouri, a certified "No Record Statement" may be obtained from the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services, Bureau of Vital Records (the same agency that provides certified birth certificates). This verifies that there is no birth record on file; and
    - ii. Supporting documents include, but are not limited to, military records, your child's certified birth certificate -- listing you as parent -- issued by a vital records agency (hospital-issued birth certificates and birth registration cards are not accepted), baptismal record, insurance policy, Social Security Administration numident, school records, employment records, and Census Bureau records, etc. The supporting documents should list the applicant's name, place of birth, date of birth, or age at the time the document was issued. Each document does not need to have all of the preceding information but the department needs sufficient information to establish place and date of birth. For example, Military Discharge Papers stating that Mr. John Brown was discharged on March 25, 1945 would not be sufficient since the document does not include Mr. Brown's place of birth.
